The American Optometric Association has identified children's vision as a national focus of attention. You may be unaware of how much vision influences learning. To help you determine if your child has concealed vision problems that impact learning, here is a brief list of questions for you to answer. If there are 2 or more answers in the first column, further testing for accommodative and binocular vision problems and/or visual perceptual disorders is indicated.

You have the power to change your child's academic future!
